GERMAN GUNS HURL SHELLS 18 MILES

DUNKIRK PORT IS SHELLED

PARIS, April 30.—Dunkirk, the great French port, naval station and British base on the Straits of Dover, was bombarded by the Germans today, according to official statements issued by both the French and German war offices.

German warships have been seen off the coast of Belgium, according to the French official statement, and it was first assumed by the War Office here that the bombardment of Dunkirk was the work of German ships.

But late this afternoon it became known here that the German War Office had given out the following terse official statement concerning the bombardment: "The fortress at Dunkirk was shelled today by German artillery."

This statement astounded the French War Office, which had not known accurately where the shells came from which created havoc in Dunkirk. The nearest German lines to Dunkirk are fully eighteen miles from that city. It follows, therefore, that the Germans have brought up artillery behind their lines of such tremendous and unheard of power that they are actually able to shoot more than eighteen miles, hit the mark, and accomplish great damage. This is a fact hitherto unknown, and surpasses any accomplishment of the kind in history, even doing more than the famous 42-centimetre guns—known as "Busy Berthas"—accomplished at Antwerp, Lege, Namur and Maubeuge.

The fact that part of the German fleet had made a dash into the open sea and appeared off the coast of Belgium was not in itself an amazing circumstance. How the German ships eluded the English fleet and what the purpose of the dash is cannot be surmised here.

It seems evident now that the German warships have crept along the Belgian coast under cover of the se huge twenty-mile guns and may be expected soon to strike at the northern coast of France.

Submarine Sinks British Collier and a Trawler

By International News Service.
LONDON, April 30.—The British collier Mobile was torpedoed off Lends island Thursday. The English trawler Hilary was sunk by a German submarine in the North Sea, seventy miles from the mouth of the Tyne, yesterday. Her crew was rescued. The sailors of the Mobile were given five minutes to leave the collier. They took to small boats and then the submarine sank the Mobile. Several torpedoes were fired before the ship went down. The Mobile was a new ship. She was built with a cargo of coal last Saturday, and was intended by the submarine forty miles west of Lends. From the point where she was sunk the crew made their way in small boats to Carlaway and then to Stornoway.

Call Springfield Strike Tomorrow

The State Board of Arbitration and Conciliation was notified this afternoon by John H. Hannon, vice-president of the National Association of Street Car Employees, that a strike would be called in Springfield tomorrow morning. The State Board immediately wired Mr. Hannon, who was on his way from Worcester to Springfield, asking Hannon that he do his utmost to postpone the strike until May 1, when the State Board will hold public hearings on the trolley employees' situation in Springfield.

Hanover Landmark Burned

HANOVER, April 28.—A fire early this morning destroyed the home of El John on King street, West Hanover. The building was one of the landmarks in the town. The loss is estimated at $2,000.

REJECT SEVEN BILLS ON FILM CENSORSHIP

Rejecting the seven censorship bills arising out of the agitation known as "The Birth of a Nation," the Committee on Judiciary voted today to report a new bill of its own composition. The new bill vests censorship power in Boston in the Mayor, the Police Commissioner and the Chief Justice of the Municipal Court. These officials are given absolute authority to prevent or suppress any licensed public entertainment in Boston for any cause deemed sufficient by them. But their judgment and action must be unanimous. The committee is being polled. Of the fifteen members, Representatives Eben S. Abbott of Haverhill and Essex K. Bowser of Wakefield have dissented. The cause for their dissenting was not stated. It was said that no more than one other member would dissent. Representative William M. Kennard of Somerville, chairman of the committee, will draft the new bill. To become operative the bill must be passed by the House.

ALLIES TAKE GALLI POLI, IS ATHENS REPORT

PARIS, April 30.—An Athens dispatch to the Temps states that the allies have captured Gallipoli, a town on the southern side of Gallipoli peninsula at the western end of the Sea of Marmora, and forty miles from the entrance to the Dardanelles. Athens also reports that the greater part of the Anglo-French fleet has entered the Dardanelles and is furiously bombarding the Turkish forts defending the Narrows. The cannonade went on all night. Fierce land fighting is in progress on both sides of the Dardanelles, with the Turks rushing

230 Democrats in Next National House

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The official list of members of the House in the Sixty-fourth Congress, corrected from previous unofficial compilations made at the Capitol, was issued today. It shows that of the 435 members, 230 are Democrats, 191 Republicans, seven Progressives, one Independent and one Socialist, together with four vacancies and the first New York Senator not yet determined as between Lathrop Brown, Democrat, and Frederick F. Hixon, Republican.

Sox-Braves Games Are Both Put Over

The Red Sox-Yankees and the Braves-Giants games today were called off. The battle scheduled for Fenway Park between the Red Sox and New York was called off early in the afternoon on account of the cold weather and the same at New York between the Braves and Giants was postponed on account of wet grounds.

KAUFF BARRED FROM PLAYING WITH NATIONALS

NEW YORK, April 30.—President John K. Tener today barred from the National League Henry Kauff, the player whose presence on the Giant team caused a row with the Boston Braves yesterday.

Tener notified the Brooklyn Federals that Kauff could not play in the National League at this time. The Federal League will hold a special meeting here tomorrow to take up the Kauff case.

President Tener also announced that the Braves officially won their much-debated 18 to 8 game from the Giants yesterday. The Giants contended that the game was only an exhibition state and that they really won the regular game through a forfeit award from Umpire Quigley. Tener said that Quigley exceeded his authority in awarding the game to the Giants by a forfeit award and that he has overruled Quigley's action.

The suits precipitated by McGraw when he attempted to injure Henry Kauff, the Ty Cobb of the Federal League, into the New York lineup in yesterday's clash with the Braves threaten to bring about the biggest war in baseball has seen in the last two years. The row began at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon when Kauff suddenly appeared on the field in a game against the Federal League, which was probably still in ignorance of the fact that the player had been barred from the game of organized baseball.

James R. Gaffney, president of the Braves and who has been regarded as one of organized baseball's chief leaders in the war with the Federal League, and Tener took the position that Kauff was ineligible to play with any club in organized baseball because he jumped a contract with the Indianapolis club of the American Association with the Federals.

STATE HOSPITAL INMATES SLEPT ON THE FLOOR

Startling conditions in State institutions were revealed to the House of Representatives today. Representative Greenwood of Everett told the House that in one State institution which is deprived of proper facilities, difficult operations have been performed, in one case involving the removal of a cancer, while the patients lay on a plank at the end of a corridor.

Representative Butler of Lawrence said he visited Danvers State Hospital at midnight and found inmates sleeping on tables and on the floor. Greenwood added that 50 per cent of the attendants leave the institutions every year, but the patients have to stay and suffer the "deplorable conditions." He arranged the Republican members for their "sagacity" policy on institutional improvements, and declared the Democrats have voted for them at every opportunity.

LOMASNEY ACTIVE. Representative Quinn of Swampscott said the Legislature seems willing to spend money for anything except for the inmates of the institutions and added that he was willing "to mortgage the State House to take care of those people."

When Chairman Hull, Republican leader of the Ways and Means Committee, defended the committee's attitude of opposition against the institutions appropriations, Representative Lomasney demanded to know, "Why didn't you practice economy on the $150,000 western highway bill they voted for?" Mr. Hull comes from Berkeley county.

Massachusetts always led the case of its unfortunate, and Lomasney, "and so long as the Republican party men that lie policy, put it into its platform and lived up to it, the party remained in power, but if late years it has permitted conditions which are disgraceful."

REPORT GERMAN DISASTER ON YSER

By International News Service.
HAVRE, France, April 30. (via London)--A force of 4,000 Germans that was hung across the Yser Canal near Steenstraete, West Flanders

According to dispatches received here at the temporary seat of the Belgian government today, the survivors of the German force were made prisoners of war.

After the Germans crossed the Meuse River, they moved on to the bridges and then a terrific machine gun fire was opened upon the invading German-aided German troops. The force fled and many were drowned in the canal.

While in the fighting the Germans resumed their attacks along the Ypres Canal last night, but without success.

Received here today: The attacks were preceded by a heavy bombardment of 17-inch guns and smaller artillery along the front line.

Along the battle line. For several hours shells rained upon the allied positions.

Kaiser's infantry began its assaults.

Those were detected by the searchlights.

Withering fire was opened upon the advancing Germans.

preceded by a heavy bombardment of the allies' position by the Germans' 7-inch guns and smaller artillery in an attempt to destroy the trenches along the battle line. For several hours shells rained upon the allied troops' positions and then the Kaiser's Infantry began its assaults. These were detected by the searchlights behind the allies' line, and a withering fire was opened upon the advancing Germans.

The first annual meeting of the re-organized Board of Trade was addressed by Governor Voth, Hon. John N. Cole, chairman of the Boston Industrial Council, and Rev. William Richardson, a former pastor of St. John's M. E. Church.

'NOW'S TIME FOR ITALY TO STRIKE'

By BRINGTON D'ALLAIRE,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

ROME, April 28.—International newspapers today launched another broadside against the government in an attempt to influence it toward participation in the war. They assert that this is the time for Italy to strike, as her claims would receive scant attention if she made an eleventh hour entry into the war.

One newspaper says flatly that King Victor Emmanuel wants to help the allies, but that his wishes are being blocked by certain members of the cabinet suspiciously tinged with the influence of ex-Premier Giolitti. It says that the King has reversed his decision not to attend the Garibaldi celebration at Quarto, and will attend the ceremonies, which will have a distinctly pro-war character.

The utterances of this paper are the first hint of differences between the King and cabinet.

Another international organ asserts that the Austro-Italian negotiations are hopelessly deadlocked.

"Political circles are saturated with pessimism. The Austro-Italian negotiations are deadlocked. This is frankly admitted at Berlin and Vienna. The impasse is due to the nation's firm attitude on important political issues."

"As usual, the disputed points have been referred to Vienna."

The German ambassador, who is, as everyone knows, studying to reach a satisfactory solution. This is hardly probable."

20,000 Horses Go from Plattsburgh

BURLINGTON, Vt., April 30.—Agents of the English government have leased the Clinton County Fairgrounds at Plattsburgh, and tomorrow will put it in use as a gathering place for 20,000 horses, which will be bought in the United States, west of Chicago. At Plattsburgh the horses will be prepared for the ocean voyage. A large number of English officers and veterinarians are now on hand for the work. It is said this number of animals fit for the service will cost $4,500,000.

500 German Shells Fall Upon Rheims

By International News Service.

PARIS, April 30.—An official report issued today says that 500 shells, many of them incendiary, have fallen on Rheims. Many fires have resulted, but have not been allowed to spread, being rapidly extinguished.

"Le Champs-Élysées," says the communiqué, "the German bombardment a French ambulance, wounding a sergeant."

"A German attack at Epres was easily driven back by the French."

Lisbon Bombs Wounds Three.

LISBON, April 30.—Five persons were arrested today in connection with the plot to assassinate the editor of the Royalist newspaper Odis with a bomb. The bomb was discovered in the house by a servant who carried it to a restaurant, where it exploded, wounding three persons.

Pioneer Social Club Dance.

TRUNK MYSTERY DIES PEACEFULLY

DEATHS.

MYSTERY, T. TRUNK, of Malden, age 35 died at 11:15 a. m. at his home, 111 Madison street, Malden. Cause of death, pneumonia of the lungs.

The Trunk Mystery of Malden, one of the most promising and engaging of infant mysteries, expired suddenly at Malden police station at 1:15 p. m. today.

Baby Mystery—the little fellow was only 13½ hours old—died so completely that there wasn't a spark of life left in him, except this bit of explanation.

The mystery was born when a tin trunk, filled with feminine clothing, was found floating on the Malden river near Locke's coal wharf at 11:45 last night. Papers in the trunk indicated it might have belonged to Miss Marie Doherty, who came over on the Cunarder Franconia apparently on April 18, some year or other.

Mystery—who and where is Marie Doherty? Mystery—How did the trunk get in the river?

Solution?—Light!

Murder?—Double light!

Business of police inquiry, even as far as Lowell to find Miss Mary O'Keefe of No. 131 East Main street, whose name was on an envelope in the trunk.

Miss Keefe allowed it all meant nothing to her.

Business of inquiry at Cunard line office and finding that Marie Doherty did arrive on the Franconia on May 17, 1913, found for the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Sullivan at No. 114 Madison street, Malden.

Business of asking Mrs. Sullivan, "Certainly," said Mrs. Sullivan, "I was moving and I found the trunk in the attic and threw it in the river."

Mr. Doherty is my cousin. She is working somewhere. She came to my house first when she landed, until she got work. She left the trunk here all the time. She didn't want it, so I threw it in the river."

MISS ERNESTINE HUNT, one of the three Wellesley girls suspended for infraction of student government rules.

Smith College Tower Struck by Lightning

The tower of College Hall, at Smith College in Northampton, was struck by lightning during the thunder storm which swept over Massachusetts today.

Students of the college were attending chapel exercises in the hall at the time. The damage was not serious.

Elsewhere slight damage from lightning and from rain was reported. A heavy shower, however, drenched the downtown streets.

Curley Again Seeks Creel.

Mayor Curley is today in Washington where he will make another appeal to President Wilson for the services of Dr. Richard H. Creel of the Federal Health Bureau.

WELLESLEY GIRL TELLS OF 'PRANK'

The real story of the "seepage" which stirred Wellesley College was told today by one of the three students suspended by the faculty at the suggestion of the Student Government Association—Miss Ernestine Hunt, the daughter of Dr. William C. Hunt, a physician of No. 424 Newtonville avenue, Newtonville, Mass.

Miss Hunt's companions in her prank, for which she and her father both believe the offenders were punished far too seriously, were Miss Ruth D. Fanning of Whitehouse, N. Y., and Miss Dorothy A. Moore of Regensburg, Pa. Miss Moore is a sophomore, the other two juniors.

"We simply broke one of the rules of the Student Government Association forbidding students to trespass the limits of the town of Wellesley, unless accompanied by a chaperone approved by the faculty," said Miss Hunt. "We were suspended."

"From the size of the penalty imposed, and from the extreme seriousness with which the matter was handled, one would gather that something awful had happened. But I can assure you that it was just a silly little lark."

"You know there is the dormitory that 730 unless they register their intentions to stay out later under chaperonage. Well, to perfectly frank about it, just before Thanksgiving we stayed out one evening until 9 p. m. and one of the girls let us into the dormitory on our return."

"As far as I know, the protest never learned of that little escapade, and perhaps we became just a little bolder than we should, because a few nights before Christmas we stayed out till 10:30 without registering. As before, one of the girls let us into the dormitory on our return."

"We all thought the incident had escaped the notice of the professor for the second time. In fact, we were sure it had, for nothing was said of it, and we never knew we were even suspected until a few days ago when we suddenly learned that we were to be brought up before the Student Government Association. The result you know. Yes, on both occasions we were horseback riding during the evening."

"Dr. Hunt, the young woman's father, said that he believed that the faculty was much more severe in its punishment of the girls than the occasion warranted. He declared that if Miss Hunt was not accompanied by a young man from the Cavalry Club while she was horseback riding, she was disobeying his express command. He declared that he had forbidden her to go riding alone, and accompanied by a man who could handle her horse in case of an accident."

"Of course," he admitted, "the girls broke one of the rules of the college. They should not have done so. But it does seem that the punishment was a little bit too severe."

LAST DAYS OF THE

Greatest Suit Sale Ever Held in Boston

The sale of the stock of Bashwitz Bros. and Company was probably one of the greatest clothing sales ever held in New York. We were first on the scene—and got the pick of the whole stock—and so when these goods were placed on sale in Boston at the lowest prices ever named on fine clothing, we were quite naturally overwhelmed with response. Men who bought these bargains told their friends and each day the crowds increased. It is impossible to continue this sale later than Saturday night. In order to make it a great triumphal day, we filled in all the sizes with garments of equal value and there will be a complete assortment up to closing time tomorrow night.

Keep-Off Warning on Harvard Yard Grass

The green grass in the Harvard yard isn't growing all around, all around simply because the students have killed much of the sod by making short-cut paths across the green lawn. Today the Harvard Crimson editorially pleads with the undergraduates to spare the green grass and save.

Already the Yard has become riddled with unsightly short-cuts, with many paths in an intricate maze. A feeble will and a howling fondness for convenience are destructive to beauty. Keep to the firm gravel track and spare the tender blades.

Pleads Not Guilty of Peabody Murders

Ismael Ismael, nineteen, when arraigned today in the Boston Superior Court, pleaded not guilty to the charge of slaying Arthur Eisenbether and Peter Karachambas. Ismael was held without bail and remanded to the House of Correction. He was held without bail and remanded to the House of Correction. He was held without bail and remanded to the House of Correction.

FRIDAY BOSTON AMERICAN, APRIL 30, 1915. FRIDAY

RESPECT SEEN IN BILL-GROWING OF "BIRTH OF A NATION" AGITATION

Judiciary Committee to Present New Bill Giving Power to Mayor, Police Head and Judge.

passed by both branches of the Legislature and signed by the Governor. The bill changes the present license law for public entertainments in Boston by adding power to the chief justice of the municipal court. Under the present law the power is with only the Mayor and the Police Commissioner.

The bill further proposes to change the law by eliminating the section which now prescribes the cause for which shows may be suppressed or the action may be taken for any cause that appeals to the unanimous judgment of the three officials.

Representative Abbott and Bowen, the dissenting members of the Committee on Judiciary, announced later that they dissent on the ground that the present laws were satisfactory. Senator William J. Sullivan of South Boston also dissented. He will introduce a substitute bill but did not disclose the nature of his proposed new bill.

THE NEW BILL.

The bill on which twelve of the fifteen members of the committee agree is as follows:

The Mayor of Boston shall grant a license for theatrical exhibitions, public shows, public amusements and exhibitions of every description, to which admission is obtained upon payment of money or upon the display of any valuable thing, upon such terms and conditions as may seem reasonable, but there shall not be charged a license fee of more than $100 for such license when the entertainment is in a building licensed as a theatre, a license to be extended in a building licensed as a theatre shall be for theatrical season and shall expire on the first day of May next following.

THE MAYOR AND THE POLICE COMMISSIONER AND THE CHIEF JUSTICE OF THE MUNICIPAL COURT OF THE CITY OF BOSTON SHALL ACTING UNANIMOUSLY, MAY REVOKE OR Suspend SUCH LICENSE AT THEIR PLEASURE.

The other day the Rev. Dr. Thomas B. Gregory came over from New York to make a speech against the dramatic measure offered by Representative Lewis H. Sullivan of Dorchester to prohibit all public entertainments tending to incite racial or religious prejudice.

Dr. Gregory is a historian and author. He lived through the reconstruction period in Boston. He has an eye-witness account. He claimed "The Birth of a Nation" accurately portrays history. But his most striking allusion to the Sullivan bill was when he said:

"It is like using the tremendous heat of Vesuvius to cook an egg."

This was a deep remark. It was a sermon in those words. It was summed up the dangers of the whole agitation. Dr. Gregory meant that if the Legislature of Massachusetts was short-sighted enough to adopt any such vicious measure to alleviate a complained condition, it would be in part of fanning the wildfire of race and religious hatred that had been so abominably controlled by the founders of the country's laws; the very thing it should endeavor to suppress.

He meant what editorial writers have emphasized, that in the effort to heal a specific and exaggerated case the law-makers of the day would find themselves helpless to check the disturbing elements as they would attempt to quench the fire of the crater named SEE COMPLICATIONS.

The measure of the Sullivan bill has suddenly become as apparent as the swirl of a cyclone. The flame in the Legislature has stirred a tempest of protest. Press and public are aroused. It would appear that the Sullivan measure was doomed from Sullivan bill, to suppress all public entertainments that tend to incite racial or religious prejudice.

Wilson bill seeks same and under more stable verbiage.

Hallowell bill would create one censorship monopoly.

Hallowell-Wilson bill would make chief of state Police moral director of all public shows and motion picture producers against decisions by Mayor or Police Commissioner and give them right to appeal to court.

Carstens bill would compel motion picture owners to pay tax of at least $1 for every film brought into Massachusetts.

Judiciary committee bill, giving censorship to Mayor, Police Commissioner and Chief Justice of Municipal Court.

Its inception. It has served as a boomerang. Its fangs have been bared and plucked.

The slattery with which champions of the Sullivan bill have transferred their support to supplemental bills, shows what little confidence they have in that measure. It is their retreat to the sorry state of substituting a bill for a bill, their righteous wrath of an indignant community. Most of the amendments are as hazardous and as wide of the mark.

By changing the columns of the leading newspapers and by the aid of vigorous editorials, the public has been warned of the danger lurking in the proposed legislation. They have been shown what little profit there is in that measure. It is their retreat to the sorry state of substituting a bill for a bill, their righteous wrath of an indignant community. Most of the amendments are as hazardous and as wide of the mark.

WILSON IN WHICH HE SAID, "IF MEMBERS OF THE LEGISLATURE, AFTER ACCEPTING THIS INVITATION, FAIL TO VOTE AS DESIRED BY THEIR HOST, THEY WILL NOT BE OPEN TO A CHARGE OF THREATENING A SUITE INTO THE BACK OF THEIR HEAVS."

Wilson in which he said, "If members of the Legislature, after accepting this invitation, fail to vote as desired by their host, they will not be open to a charge of threatening a suite into the back of their heavs."

It is not such an invitation to the Massachusetts Legislature from such a host both on merit and a plain attempt to bribe."

This letter has further aroused the indignation of members of the Legislature. "This letter contains the suggestion that every member of the Legislature could be bribed for a couple of tickets to a moving picture show," a member of the House was heard to say in the House corridor.

THE CROSS LETTER.

Representative Cross sent his letter to Mr. Wilson as soon as he had read the Wilson letter.

Representative Cross is one of the two Progressive members of the Legislature. He is a Williams College graduate and was for many years a school teacher.

He has seen "The Birth of a Nation" and approves of it. His letter to Mr. Wilson read:

Dear Sir—Your communication of yesterday received. I have seen "The Birth of a Nation." It contains not a single reflection on the Northern colored man. It is one of the best things I have seen in the whole of the North. It is one of the best things I have seen in the whole of the North. It is one of the best things I have seen in the whole of the North.

The play deals with a historic episode in our national history. It may be distasteful to the colored people even as a memory of the white and Quaker prejudice is distasteful to the people of New England. But it is useless to another anything that is the main is true.

WILSON DENIES HE ENDORSED "NATION" FILM

A dispatch from Washington says that President Wilson today repudiated the claim that he had endorsed the photo-play "The Birth of a Nation" which has given offense to negroes throughout the country. Mr. Lewis of Boston, the only negro ever appointed an assistant attorney-general, and Bishop Walters of the African M. E. Church called at the White House, and procured the denial from J. F. Tumulty, the President's secretary.

It is one of the best things I have seen in the whole of the North. It is one of the best things I have seen in the whole of the North. It is one of the best things I have seen in the whole of the North.

The play deals with a historic episode in our national history. It may be distasteful to the colored people even as a memory of the white and Quaker prejudice is distasteful to the people of New England. But it is useless to another anything that is the main is true.

Vincent Club's New Hit Girls Star in Male Roles

Miss Janet Elliott, who takes a leading part in 1915 Vincent Club play, "The S. S. Romantic."

The last performance of this year's Vincent Club show, "The S. S. Romantic," will be held at the Court Theatre tonight.

Staged with elaborate scenic effects, enhanced with witty lines and replete with catchy songs and feigning dances, the show, the first presentation of which occurred Tuesday evening, has proved one of the most successful ever given in the history of the organization.

One of the hits has been the clever impersonations of young society girls in masculine roles. In the cast are almost 100 young women, including Dorothy Jordan, Ann Biedman, Grace Brooks, Marjorie Kallanbach and many other prominent Back Bay society maids.

Among those appearing in leading roles are Miss Janet Elliott and Miss Margaret Blackpool, both of whom have won merited applause by their acting. The show is being given in aid of St. Vincent's Hospital. Capacity houses have attended the performances already given.

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRISON.

Dame Rumor is a fickle jade; she jumps from one point to another. Sometimes she is right, but generally her ideas are not founded upon fact. However, she usually manages to create some little interest, and her latest creation is one to the effect that the coming Fall will find at least two automobile concerns placing 12-cylinder cars on the market.

C. S. Henshaw, of the Henshaw Motor Company, distributors of the Dodge Brothers car, left Boston yesterday for a visit to the Dodge plant at Detroit. Mr. Henshaw has gone West to make a strenuous attempt to make his daily shipment increased by several carloads.

The annual one-gallon economy test of the Franklin Automobile Company is to be held tomorrow. Otto Lawton, the local distributor, will attempt to eclipse his record of a year ago when he drove a six-cylinder Franklin 400 miles on a gallon of gasoline. One hundred and sixty-four dealers throughout the country have entered this test and each will try to secure the greatest mileage out of a gallon of gasoline.

CABARET SINGER DIES; DOCTOR HELD

Gertrude E. Purcell, a cabaret singer, is dead at the Hillsdale Hospital, Dorchester, of peritonitis brought on, according to Medical Examiner Leary, by illegal surgery.

Dr. Frank S. Parsons, fifty-two, of No. 267 Adams street, Dorchester, is charged with having given the girl the treatment. He was arrested on March 3, and on his arraignment the following day in the Dorchester district court, the case was continued, pending the outcome.

The complaint alleged that the treatment was given on January 3. Miss Purcell, apparently recovered, but early in March peritonitis developed. Dr. C. E. O'Brien of No. 25 Columbia road was called, and after ordering the girl to the hospital, notified the police.

Miss Purcell was twenty-three and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James J. Fawcett of No. 32 Fuller street, Ashmont.

Rourke Asks His Force to Aid O'Hearn

Commissioner of Public Works Louis K. Rourke, who retired tonight in favor of Acting Commissioner Patrick O'Hearn, today summoned his division engineers and his chief clerk to meet Mr. O'Hearn and bespeak their cooperation with his successor until a permanent commissioner can be appointed.

Those present at the conference with O'Hearn and Rourke were Chief Clerk Bernard E. Kelley and Division Engineers Frank A. McInnes of the sewer and water department, James H. Sullivan of the highway department and S. E. Tinkham of the bridge and ferry department.

"When the permanent commissioner is appointed," said Mr. Rourke today, "I will wish any assistance, I shall be glad to give it to him."

Mayor Curley, a few days ago announced that he would not reappoint Rourke, and Mr. Rourke promptly asked to be relieved of his duties promptly upon the expiration of his term.

IMMIGRANT ROW AT LONG WHARF

Planning to escape during the excitement, two women held for deportation at the Long Wharf immigration station led a score of other women in an attack on Dr. H. B. C. Riemer, the staff physician. The rush carried him back to the wall of the detention pen, and he had to battle single-handed to save himself, until Giovanni Magni, held as a contract laborer, went to his rescue.

Rushing in between the physician and his assailants, Magni in his own thought brought the women not to injure the doctor, as he was one of their best friends. But as the laborer made his idea, the leaders in the attack, covertly picked two heavy weights off a scale, and were about to hurl them into the group, when Inspector John W. Dolan and Chief Clerk John Markey rushed into the pen and saved their arms.

The noise of the attack spread throughout the building and before the matter could become more serious there was a guard for every belligerent.

Spring Calls!

SPRING calls in the deep woodsy places with her dear comrades, Sire and furry rabbit, and the "road-frog" newly out of his carthen shed, and the little field-mouse, with the little ears like periwinkle shells and the dainty paws. And she calls: You know she calls! For her nose floats out of the farplace where she wakes and creeps to a leoparded in the whispering grass among the tender flowers that nod there, and it rises and comes, strong and sweet into the city through the writhing smoke and the clatter and banging—and it sits preposterously sweet and insistent through the office of the chap who's been digging away all Winter. And content to die! But what he hears the first soft note of Spring's song—calling—calling—calling, "Sneak away, Winter's dead, sneak away, there's delightful things to be doing—galling and camping—where's your white shoes and your moose hides and your old flannel shirts—listen—listen—the sea calls, and the trails call, and I call—and in my song is the call of these things and the call of Love—the call of Love!" His Winter-wrapped spirit aches, his heart of the off-shoulder in a blind cloud over his heart; he swirls his papers into the air (when he can file out of his co-con and follow)—and after that folks say, "He has the Spring fever!" The Winter-wrapped spirit has been at peace in her fur—without green places and lay days—stretches her arms in dim-awakening when the cold, icy, repeating notes reach her ears in town. And under its spell she sees "wind-washed slopes—anywhere—anywhere—glow with flowers—herself in her midly jacket and flat white shoes—blue sky and white clouds and sailing yellow butterflies—and a man!" Spring calls and listens—and chuckles, I reckon, when she hears the stir in the city places that her must make—when she hears the fever of her mate in the turmoil in myriad spirits behind the desk!

Big 10-Vote Coupon Sunday

How to Send in Coupons

Get ready, candidates, for the big 10-vote coupon to appear in next Sunday's AMERICAN, as well as another complete page of photographs.

Remember, you have until 5 p. m. on next Monday, May 3, in which to send or mail the series "B" coupons to the Contest Manager, No. 5 Winthrop square.

Read the following instructions carefully. They are printed for your benefit so that you will make no mistake in sending your coupons, and avoid losing hard-earned vote credits because of carelessness.

The important thing to remember is:

Double Vote Value Will Be Given for All Complete Consecutive Sets.

A "consecutive set" consists of 15 coupons, one for each day in the Series; for example, one coupon of Series "B" No. 1, one coupon of Series "B" No. 2, one coupon of Series "B" No. 3, etc., up to and including Series "B" No. 15.

For every complete "consecutive set" of 15 consecutive coupons, as described above, DOUBLE VOTE VALUE will be given.

The regular face value of these 15 coupons is 42 votes, but if sent in, in one complete set, as described, within one week after the close of Series "B," they will count DOUBLE.

Of course, it is clear that the more "consecutive sets" that a contestant can get, the greater his advantage, because of the DOUBLE VOTE VALUE for "consecutive sets."

After gathering your votes and when arranging them before submitting them to the Contest Editor, do your sorting in this way: Place all coupons marked "B No. 1" in one pile, count them carefully, wrap them separately in one bundle and mark on the outside of the package.

My name is..... My address is.....
.....No. of coupons Series "B" No. 1 contained herein.

Do precisely the same with Series "B" No. 2 coupons, the same with Series "B" No. 3 Coupons, the same with Series "B" No. 4 coupons, and so on with each number up to and including Series "B" No. 15 coupon. In other words, after you have done this, you will have 15 separate and distinct bundles of coupons, each carefully wrapped and each carefully labeled with your name and address and the number of coupons of that particular series number contained therein.

For each consecutive set contained in these bundles, you will receive DOUBLE their face value.

Face value ONLY will be given for coupons which do not make up consecutive sets.

Many candidates were late in turning in their Series "A" coupons. There is no excuse or reason for this and it seems too bad that any candidate should lose a single vote credit because of neglecting to get the coupons in within the time set.

To correct some of the mistakes which have been made in sending in coupons, special attention is called to the following:

Have name and address and number of votes contained therein marked plainly on each bundle.

It is well to have an extra memorandum (of votes) inside each bundle.

Do not mix the votes of different series when sending in coupons.

At the end of each Series and during the week allowed to gather and send in votes, please arrange to turn them in in one lot, instead of (as some did in Series "B") sending in three or four bundles one day, two or three bundles the next day and one the third day, etc., during each of the seven days allowed. This is entirely unnecessary. Send together in one lot, if possible.

Send correspondence in separate letters. Do not enclose letters asking for information with vote bundles.

Have postage fully prepaid.

Address all bundles of votes to American Expositions Contest, P. O. Box 2047, Boston, Mass. DO NOT send votes address 1 to Summer street.

GET COUPON IN SUNDAY AMERICAN

Readers of the Boston Sunday AMERICAN, in addition to getting the most attractive Sunday newspaper for five cents, will receive with their paper a coupon which will secure ten cents at the Nautical Garden Theatre at Revere Beach any time Sunday afternoon or evening.

This coupon with five cents added to any other seat at the Nautical Garden Theatre, where the big feature photograph, "The Captives of Kitty," with Star, will be shown, will be shown.

The Nautical Garden Theatre only runs on Sunday. On Wednesday it is the Nautical Garden ballroom. But a beautiful stage, one of the best picture screens and projectors in America, and 1,000 seats, make it a most wonderful place to see a picture show.

"Mother Wants to Sell Hair to Save Home"

Nothing Unusual in This Newspaper Announcement
(Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company)

Mrs. Caesar F. Penso is a pretty little woman of Astoria, Long Island.

And this pretty little woman wants to sell her "wealth of thick black hair" to save her home.

We suppose that many people will sympathize with this "pretty little woman with the wealth of thick black hair."

Give sympathy by all means; the pretty little woman and the wealth of thick black hair deserve it.

But don't forget the other women, the hundreds of thousands of them, who sacrificed their thick hair long ago and have been steadily sacrificing everything else since then to save a home and to keep one together.

That newspaper announcement might bring to your mind thousands of women with very thin, white hair. You can notice how thin it is when you see them on their hands and knees scrubbing. And you see how white the hair and the face are when the woman stands up to get her breath, or answer the janitor's question, if she happens to be working in an office building at night, or to look after one of the children, if she happens to be scrubbing in her daughter's house, taking care of the grandchildren at the same time.

It is quite a shock, of course, for pretty Mrs. Caesar F. Penso to sacrifice her wealth of thick black hair. But, if she runs the course of thousands and millions of women, she will get used to that and forget very soon the day when the thick hair went. She will live to be grateful that she sold it, instead of losing it one hair at a time trying to take care of a family, and of the work that women are expected to do.

If women could get through life and "save their homes" by merely sacrificing their hair, how happy they would be!

But, bearing children too closely together, sitting up at night, working all day, fretting over expense, worrying about their children and their often worthless husbands, they sacrifice hair and everything else.

Health goes, hair goes, color, shape, everything.

Sewing, cooking, mending, answering questions, getting children up in the morning to go to school, getting them up later to go to work, having dinner ready, sharp on time, and suited to the taste of Mr. Husband, "the dear bread-winner," bearing the whole load, from the "happy day of marriage" to the infinitely happier day of her funeral—such is the career of the average woman.

She doesn't ask your pity, for, curiously enough, she is delighted to do the work for the children, she is happy with every new arrival that increases her burden, she is content to work for and with her grown children, as she worked for them when they were babies.

She doesn't miss the "wealth of black hair" that went long ago, nor the wealth of health, good looks, that followed after. But, for goodness sake, don't say that this woman, who has made all these sacrifices, knows nothing about life, that she is an unimportant member of the community, and ought not to be trusted with the very grave responsibility of voting to decide what shall be done with her children and the few hairs that she has left.

P. S.—When you hear of women who sell their hair or wear out their last ounce of energy to preserve a home for their children, don't confine your sympathy to mere thinking. Make up your mind to work and vote to increase the influence of women and give them at least a chance that men have had.

Vote this year to give the suffrage to women.

Turn About Is Fair Play

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

This man used to be pointed out as one who could "punish whiskey." The day of turn about has come, and now whiskey punishes him. Turn about is not fair play in this case, for the man was badly advised, or poor and worried. He was urged by his friends to drink, not protected by the law, and the whiskey that he once "punished" now punishes him. Whiskey punishes him by weighing his heart, and his brain. His chance is gone, his contest is dead. Sure, the picture of a million men living and send votes address—

Mothers' Sacrifices Too Often Lack Reason

Dorothy Dix Says That the Woman Who Goes Without Ordinary Comforts in Order to Give Son a College Education Is Doing Injustice to Him as Well as Herself

By DOROTHY DIX

A NEW book is causing much discussion among women because it raises the probability of how far the virtue of maternal unselfishness may go without becoming a vice.

This story deals with an English woman who is left a very young widow, with a very young baby and a very small fortune. The mother devotes herself exclusively to the child. She has but one idea in life, and that is to give her son the advantage, as she considers it, of being educated in the most expensive and fashionable schools, and of associating on equal terms with the sons of the rich and great.

In order to do this, when the boy is eight years old she sends him from her to a very exclusive school where they have swimming tanks and billiard tables and golf links and cricket grounds and every luxury of existence, although to do so takes so much of her income that she has to give up her home and go to live in a shabby cottage.

As the son grows older and goes to Harrow and Cambridge, his expenses are increased, and to meet them she literally starves herself to death, doing without even fire in the winter and sufficient food and clothes, and refusing the medical attendance that will save her life, because the cost of it would deprive her son of the money to hold up his end in college—or he might even have to give up college altogether.

"I do not mind going without lunch," she exclaims rapturously,

"because I think that the price of it means just another necktie for my boy."

And this woman is held up as an ideal of a mother's love and a mother's unselfishness, and her example is supposed to be beautiful and edifying. Rather is it an awful warning against the morbid sentimentality that so many mothers possess, and which renders them incapable of seeing what is best for their children, and makes their piteous sacrifices as useless and impotent as any ever offered up by a heathen before a stone image.

Much Overloaded

There is no other virtue in the world that is so overloaded as self-sacrifice. Often than not it is either sheer idiocy or a crime and a curse instead of a blessing to those for whom it was made.

To take the specific instance recorded in this book, can any sane person really think that the boy was the better for the sacrifices, heroic in themselves, that the mother made for him? Could such immolation of herself for him do anything else but make him a brutal, selfish egotist? And what a boulder a boy must be who would be willing to let his mother starve that he might feast, to permit her to go shabby that he might have silk ties and so that exactly matched!

Wouldn't this boy, or any other boy in the world, make him a finer man, a more useful citizen, and have had really a better chance to make a material success in life, if he had borne his part of the family burden, if he had been raised not to think he must have the best of everything, but to have an impassioned and chivalric desire to care for his mother, and give her the best?

In his biography Andrew Carnegie says that his first impulse toward making money was in order to take care of his mother. Barrie tells the same thing, and that his one cry to his mother when he was even a tiny lad was, "Wait until I'm a man. Then you shall have everything." And thousands of lesser men have been driven along the road that leads to big things by that same noble impulse—to make life soft and beautiful for a mother who has had a hard life.

Character Best

It is understandable why a mother should be willing to make great sacrifices to try to educate her son, but there is one point that these mothers, who are starving themselves to death to send their boys to college, should remember. That is, that there is one thing a million times better than a university degree, and that is character.

It is far better that a lad's alma mater should be the mother who bore him than it is for him to be a pile of bricks and mortar. The boy who hustles out and helps mother make a living, nine times out of ten will go farther than the weak, selfish, lazy loafer who lets mother work her fingers to the bone to send him to college. And mother's sacrifices are equally disastrous when they are made for girls. Mother makes of herself a burnt offering over the kitchen stove in order that Mabel and Gladys may keep their hands white and manicured. Mother goes so shabby that her own daughters are ashamed to speak to her in the street that Mabel and Gladys may have the very latest freak hat and dress from Paris.

And what is the result? She raises up women who are monsters of selfishness, and utterly useless, to curse the men who marry them. They have seen mother sacrifice to themselves ever since they were born. They have been taught by mother's attitude that they, and they alone, are the ones to be considered, that they have a right to the best of everything, and the world was created for their pleasure, and when they find that their husbands have no idea of following mother's example and making doormats of themselves, there's trouble in the family.

If you could trace back every divorce you would almost invariably find that mother should be named as the real co-responsible. It was mother's selfishness that created the Frankenstein, male or female, with whom nobody else could live.

Surely the very angels must weep over the self-sacrifice of mothers. It is so bitter, and it does so much harm. For a woman to immobilize herself for her children is immoral. There is nothing grand and noble about it, and the sooner we recognize this the better.

"Once-Overs"

There are some people so philosophical that they insist "every knock is a boost." But did you ever hear of a kick helping a man who was down?

What good does it do you to jump on a fallen man? There is nothing creditable about it. It does not add to your peace of mind, nor cause you to feel better pleased with yourself, does it? Literally, when you told that story about the downfall of your acquaintance or friend, you kicked him a bit lower and are helping to keep him down.

Every harmful story which you repeat adds additional impetus, and stories of this sort do not need a greased runway to speed them up. Better sprinkle the sand of helpfulness on the slippery ways and check the downward turn.

Such stories do not need additional feathers in their wings to hasten their flight. Pull a few out. Why not trim the wings so that they may have less power as propellers of evil? If necessary, cut them out altogether.

More Truth Than Poetry
By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

Just the Same as Ever

"War, once a gentleman's trade."—Essayist.

WHEN gentlemen wearied of castle and court, In the kingdoms that flourished of yore, They deemed it a pleasant and elegant sport To mix for a while in a war. And skill with the mace and the cross-bow and lance— Good well-seasoned killing ability— Enrolled a man's name on the scroll of romance As a person of lofty gentility.

WHEN guns were invented the man who could aim With a steady and murderous eye Was the man who excelled in the gentlemen's game And whose rank was uncommonly high. Nobility rated according as men In murder grew cunning and keen; The gentle killed few and the gentle killed ten. While the gentlest killed twelve or fifteen.

AND now, when the howitzers mow down a crowd With a single discharge of a shell, The gentlemen soldiers should feel very proud For they seem to be doing quite well. When sometimes a couple of thousand or more Are slaughtered by one cannonade, It can't be denied that the business of war Is still a real gentleman's trade.

"How I Was Saved," Told

ABSENT

By JANE M'LEAN

HOW still the cold gray dawn that comes again, Half shivering through the trees; is this face Of that dear world that only just last night Lay shimmering in a pool of silver light? How angry blows the wind—so soft, dear sighs; And how my rose, a thousand petals, lies Upon the ground; how high she held her head Last night, and lo! this morning she is dead. And all the magic of the world is gone; This is tomorrow, on the threshold, Dawn Opens the way; and if tonight perchance The wind shall whisper and the moonlight dance, And all the myriad stars come pricking through, Shall be waiting there; but where are you?
